

Berkeley Summer Abroad

2020

Narratives of Tradition and Resistance

Learn about Philippine history, culture, and society through interactions with Filipino people, as well as selected lectures by leading scholars in the Philippines. Students will be based at the University of the Philippines Diliman, the flagship campus of the national university system, and will go on field trips to farming communities, urban poor communities, the Cordillera mountain region, and more.

Topics explored include the history of Japanese Occupation through the eyes of “comfort women,” indigenous knowledge (including traditional tattooing and storytelling, indigenous math and engineering in the rice terraces, etc.), health care in urban communities, and histories of Martial Law.

Program and Course objectives:

By the end of the course students should have:

- Gained knowledge on the history, culture, and conditions of the Philippines through texts, guest lecturers and the students own field interviews
- Demonstrated research skills through a final project based on research done in the country
